To meet the increased need for training in global perspectives, the interdisciplinary International Studies major educates students to appreciate the social, cultural, political, and economic characteristics of national, regional, and global communities. It is based on the conviction that historically informed and politically aware students with knowledge of more than one language will be able to think more critically and act more responsibly in a shrinking world. Students who successfully complete this major improve their opportunity for further study in graduate or professional school and careers in government service, private enterprise, international governmental and non-governmental organizations, non-profit education, research and advocacy organizations, and teaching.

Requirements for the Major

International studies majors take 12 courses: an introductory course; two courses each in the following four areas: economics/international business, history, modern languages, and political science; two related electives; and a capstone course. The language courses must be at the 200 level or above, and the political science courses must be at the 300 level or above. For the two history courses, one may be at the 100 level, and the other must be at the 300 or 400 level (or both may be at the 300 or 400 level). As part of the liberal learning requirements, it is recommended that students take microeconomics and statistics. These requirements differ slightly for the concentration in international economics and trade, which mandates three courses in economics/international business and one related elective.

Each student will select one major concentration from among six. Concentrations are offered in four geographic areas: Europe, Latin America and the Caribbean, the Middle East, and East Asia, and two functional subjects: diplomacy, and international economics and trade. Course requirements differ by concentration; please consult the academic requirements report in PAWS. The related electives and the study abroad experience should be relevant to the concentration chosen.

Study abroad is an important component of the major. Students are required to demonstrate at least one semester of successful academic achievement in a foreign university relevant to their field of studies, with relevance usually defined by the language studied. A year's study abroad is encouraged. Successful study abroad is defined as passing at least three classes for a minimum of 2.25 TCNJ units. Please consult your International Studies advisor and the Center for Global Engagement for the most suitable site and program.

Elective courses in the major must have an international focus, complement the student's interest within the major and receive prior approval by an International Studies advisor. Students are also encouraged to pursue an internship with an international focus.

Major Requirements

The requirements for the concentrations are as follows:

Program Entrance, Retention, and Exit Standards

Every major program at the College has set standards for allowing students to remain in that program, to transfer within the College from one program to another, and to graduate from a program. The following are the standards for international studies:

International Studies-14

- Retention in the program is based on the following performance standards in these “critical content courses”: a grade of B- in 103-level language course and in INT 200 International Studies: Processes, Themes, Issues.
- Transfer into the program from another program within the College is based upon the following performance standards in this “foundation course”: a grade of B- in the first 100-level language course taken.
- Graduation requires a GPA of 2.0 in courses for the program and a minimum grade of B- in 103-level language course and in INT 200 International Studies: Processes, Themes, Issues.

Suggested Four-Year Sequence for International Studies Majors

The following sequence is a suggestion only; students should craft a schedule to best meet their own needs. Students with a concentration in International Economics and Trade should take a third Economics or International Business course in lieu of one electives in the major. Note that “double counting” rules and the nine general elective courses allow students to pursue a second major and/or minors.
